

Dr James K Palmer Barn

The Nelson Brothers, sons of Jesse Richmond and Anna Bonner Nelson, were long-time cattle men of this area and owned ground down Winterton Lane, in Charleston. They were Jesse Richmond Jr., George, Wallace, William Ray and Glen Henry Nelson. John William Jordan purchased it from them to obtain the grazing certificates and then sold the ground to Dr James K Palmer, a Urologist of SLCU. When "Dr Jimmie" obtained the ground, he put 50 head of registered Hereford cattle on it and hired Lary Winterton to manage his cattle operation.

Then "Dr Jimmie" had a barn built, in the early 1960s, of native pine timbers and siding, by Earl Kohler, a responsible builder. This housed hay for winter feeding. The operation carried on for some time, then the Dr sold to John Barrett. He then sold to the Heber Valley Sewer District and Evan Probst ran this operation. It was during his tenure, that a blue metal "skin" was installed over the pine siding of the barn and out-buildings. Now, you see them as they are today (Apr 1998).
